

CAPTAIN M'CARTHY MAKES BOLD SPEECH

He Names Three Cities as Having No Mayor.

RICHMOND ONE OF THEM

striking Address Before the Clay Ward Aivars.

INTERESTING COMPARISONS

Says Eastern Cities Have Fine Governments, and that it Results from a Strict Attention to Municipal Business by the People—Does Not Look for Utopia in a Day.

Was Roundly Cheered.

"So far as I am able to discover, from a rather studious examination into the question, the only cities in the world where mayors have nothing to do with the conduct of municipal affairs are Paris, France; Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va."

These were practically the opening remarks of Captain Carlton McCarthy, who made a magnificent address before the Clay Ward Aivars last night on the subject of "Municipal Government."

A fairly good sized crowd greeted the distinguished orator, though the incun-dency of the night kept a great many members and visitors away. Captain McCarthy was in fine trim. It was the first time he had appeared in public since his famous campaign for mayor.

While he was speaking, the subject for the most part as a matter of principle, yet he could not refrain from pointing out one or two cracks at his adversary, Mayor Richard M. Taylor.

He did not call the name of any man in his discourse, but spoke in a dignified and gentlemanly manner, dealing all the while with issues rather than men. Captain McCarthy spoke from notes, but with the utmost deliberation, now and then dropping his papers and launching into some really beautiful flights of oratory.

ANXIOUS TO HEAR.

He had the closest attention of his audience and often when he had spoken too long there were cries of "go on."
He drew some striking comparisons between the government of cities in the old country and here, and said the great trouble in America lay in the fact that there were too many legislative restrictions upon those in authority. He urged that the last hope of good municipal government was in the activity of all the citizens and said that those who staid away from the polls on election day had no right to complain of the bad management of their affairs. He declined to say that it was not so much a question of dishonesty as incompetency in Richmond municipal affairs, and said this resulted from lack of proper interest on the part of the voters. And the suggestion emphasized by the speaker was that metropolitan conditions would not come in a day, but that any marked improvement in municipal affairs must come after long years of labor and patient waiting.

CHARTERS CIRCUMSCRIBED.

In speaking of the city charter, Captain McCarthy said its powers were not broad enough and should be enlarged.
Until he was relieved of some of the restraints placed upon it by the Legislature, Richmond could not be a great city.

"Wealth, morality and intelligence," said he, "are necessary to the existence and growth of a great city." He contended that all these were necessary to the enlargement of an up-to-date municipal corporation.

"There is a lazy, slipshod way of doing business in the city government," he continued. "I know it to be a fact that the man who undertakes to buy about a dozen good government is quickly told that he ought to attend to his own business. We are not (the city of Richmond) the advance guard in the march of municipal government as compared with Eastern cities. In the old country cities rise up city officers, and ours do not seem to progress in all the modern ideas of municipal government. In other cities the alleys and halls and stairways of public buildings are lighted, and as for river improvement, it is wonderful."

RICHMOND'S OPPORTUNITY.

"Richmond has its opportunity. The next time we will have a chance to show what we can do, freed from the curse of universal suffrage. Vital things in city government have but little politics in them. They are business propositions, and relate mainly to health, light, transportation and other local matters. Most of these questions are more difficult and important than those that arise in State or national legislatures."

"It is neither essential or desirable that the man who manages party politics in cities should dictate the policy and performance of duty after election. I believe that the vast majority of the city officers are incapable of holding the offices they now have. There are other things to be accomplished in city government as well as success in party politics."

A DEMOCRAT, BUT MORE.

"No man should be elevated to the position of Supreme City Officer simply because he is a democrat. He ought to be a democrat, but he ought to be something more. He ought to be qualified beyond all question. There is a smile and feeling of pity on the part of decent people when they hear of their city officers say to themselves that he is either a drinking man or will soon be one, and they have but little respect for him. If the city officers are contemptible it is because the people act in a contemptible manner towards their elected officers."

There ought to be a greater search for incompetency in city governments than for dishonesty. I do not believe that municipal governments are filled with thieves and scoundrels; they have in them far more incompetent and worthless officers.
The cities are governing the country districts, and if we can't win them on Democratic lines, then Democracy is a colossal failure."

"It is a difficult question. It is hard to make the same kind of government apply to both sections. The cities elect worthless men for mayors, and their lands are filled by the Legislature."

COMMERCIAL SPIRIT.

"The desire to be rich and powerful at the expense of the poor and lowly is a great curse in municipal matters. The commercial view is too far ahead of the public view. The cities should be run by the minds of the people. The recent carnival here was an illustration. It villaged the taste and ruined the lives of a great many people because some thought it would bring business."

"If the moral sense of the community is gone, there is nothing of value left, and the people should look out to see that this is preserved."

On the new water scheme the speaker said it was a good one the city should control it; if not a good one, it should not be touched. If the city should take it over, it ought to have all the right, it would be dangerous to allow it to pass into private hands. It was largely a question of trading dollars if the privilege was given away and then the water bought back.

"The tendency here is to give up everything to private corporations," said the speaker, "and the city should contend that Richmond should own water works, etc., is denounced in unmeasured terms in the face of the experience of the best cities of the civilized world."

The speaker advocated the organization of a committee to be composed of all the chairmen of the various city council committees and the Mayor, whose duty it should be to take up all outside questions of importance arising out of the local government, and he said under this board should come the matter of James River improvement, which had never been properly solved.

PARADES IN CITIES CITED.

He cited Manchester and Glasgow, England, as cities which were managing their franchises at a heavy profit to their respective governments. The speaker thought that the activity going on in the various departments was not the result of "spasms of reform," but that of the direct and aroused interest of the voting

People of the city of Richmond.

The speech of Captain McCarthy was an admirable one, and was loudly cheered at its conclusion.

After some routine business President Miner announced the following Advisory Committee, and the body adjourned to meet on the night of November 1st, when there will be a big political rally in support of Congressman Lamb.

SHOT BY BURGLARS
IN HIS OWN HOME

Well-Known Lexington Man Killed and His Son is Perhaps Mortally Wounded.

(By Associated Press.)
LEXINGTON, Ky., October 11.—A B.
Chinn, of the firm of Chinn & Todd, dry goods merchants in this city, one of the most prominent business men in Kentucky, was shot to death in his home by two masked burglars at 3:30 A. M. to-day.
His son, Asa, who heard the noise, rushed to his father's rescue and opened fire on the burglars through a closed door. The burglars returned the fire, and Asa was perhaps mortally wounded. Citizens and police are searching for the murderers, but no clue has been found.
The battle in the hall was a sharp one.
So close were the burglars to Asa Chinn that the powder burned his face. His room is near that of his parents, and he had scarcely gotten to sleep when his mother's screams aroused him. The two burglars stood at the head of Mr. and Mrs. Chinn, and striking a match covered them with their revolvers, demanding money. It was by the light of this match that Mrs. Chinn saw their green masks.
Her impression of the personal appearance of the men is very hazy. A. B.
